

Bar Graph by Municipality and Type

Figure 4 presents the number of applications by municipality, and includes the type of application, as well. This graph makes clear that variance applications from the Town of Ramapo and Village of Spring Valley constitute a significant portion of the reviews done by the Rockland County Planning Department. The 123 variance applications from Ramapo are greater than all applications from every other municipality, except Spring Valley. One can also see that, apart from the top four municipalities, most others refer a roughly similar number of variances and site plan reviews.
